Straight outta Sinaloa — by way of San Jose, California — norteno/conjunto kings Los Tigres del Norte rock the people with their “real-life” tales about life and love in a crazy-ass world. The multi-Grammy-winning band bumped themselves and the norteno genre into the stratosphere with shockingly scabrous corridos about the cross-border drug trade and illegal immigration, and they have a wicked way of turning lively party sounds inside out to explore the darker joys of love gone bad, then good, then bad again. A ferociously tight musical unit whose redefining norteno shreds a wild mix of bolero, cumbia, rock and waltzes, Los Tigres are also a right-on bunch whose success allowed them to create the Los Tigres del Norte Foundation, which recently donated $500,000 to the UCLA Chicano Studies Research Center. Opening set by Mexico City’s finest, Café Tacvba.
