

Carmen Argote, 720 Sq. Feet: Household Mutations, 2010, Dimensions variable

We would like to congratulate Carmen Argote on the recent acquisition of her monumental sculpture, 720 Sq. Feet: Household Mutations by the Los Angeles County Museum of Art.

For this work, Argote tore out the multi-room carpet that once covered the floors of her childhood home and resituated it in a gallery setting. The carpet fluctuates between sculpture and painting, and also between architectural representation and personal artifact; as the artist notes, "every stain, every mark" is part of her family's story.

This piece is currently on view at LACMA in the exhibition Home—So Different, So Appealing through October 15 in conjunction with Pacific Standard Time: LA/LA. The work was purchased with funds provided by Jane Siegal and AHAN: Studio Forum, 2017 Art Here and Now Purchase.

Argote is also included in current exhibitions at the Denver Art Museum and the Orange County Museum of Art.

Click here for more information on Carmen Argote.

